Gentlemen:

I would like to urge a delay in the implementation of the proposed rule changes within your organization which might result in a monopoly of a few giant media corporations controlling our media--television, radio, and print.

This would indicate your willingness to provide the necessary checks and balances to avoid a monopoly, a problem often demonstrated in our past history necessitating congressional action. It would allow more time for intelligent consideration of the import of these changes. Many of us feel these rule changes could seriously jeopardize the dissemination of diversity of opinion in this country--certainly one of the cornerstones of a healthy democracy.

Your consideration will be very much appreciated I assure you.

Respectfully,

Dorothea Nelson

Subject: Keep the airwaves free

I am appalled at the threat to a free and open media - please do not approve media deregulation on June 2.

our writing' to strongly urge you to keep in place all regulations pertaining to Broadcast ownership rules. Weakening these rules weakens our democracy & the ability of our citizens to receive information from a variety of sources rather than a very limited few.

I would appreciate hearing from you on this matter that deeply affects the public interest.
Most sincerely - Barbara Friedman see?" I think that for most people, the answer to the last question is no. I don't feel particularly inclined to digress into the details of why ego and self-esteem are so fundamentally and intimately related to general enlightenment. I only implore you to very carefully ask the question of yourself.
